What is the MECK60+ Study?

The MECK60+ study is an exciting research project that gives older adults in Charlotte the opportunity to share their opinions on community services, health care, and other general needs of older adults in Mecklenburg County. The study is being conducted by the Gerontology Program at UNC Charlotte. The MECK60+ study is sponsored by Southminster, a non-profit agency that specializes in the needs of older adults. The goals of this study are to learn about the health status, service use, support needs, psychological outcomes of aging and the use of community services for older adults and family caregivers in our community.
